

Junior Accounting & Tax Technology Consultant

Technology and data analytics skills are no longer “nice to have”. Technology has changed the way businesses operate. Working with technology solutions has become unavoidable in our service offering, where manipulation of large volumes of data often is required.

At PwC you can choose for a combination of Accounting and Tax Technology. You assist multinational clients to comply with their global accounting, statutory and tax requirements in the broadest sense. You help them to have a good understanding of the requirements and the impact on their organisation, looking at process and technology, data and governance. You will support our clients with their general and management accounts, statutory closing and financial statements as well as all corporate and indirect tax reporting aspects via the newest technology. You will be involved in multi-territory roll-outs of accounting platforms, improving business processes, defining and implementing solutions for optimizing financial and tax-related reporting, ERP compliance advice, reviews and improvements. A particularly varied and challenging job.

In order to improve the value that tax brings to an organization, enhanced analytics is needed. New dashboard and visualization tools will allow us to view and share data in ways that were previously not available.

Robotic Process Automation (RPA), machine learning and artificial intelligence are examples of emerging solutions that will streamline the time-consuming and error-prone tasks of today. The Tax professional of the future will be innovative, possessing and comfortably navigating both tax technical and technology skills.
