

What is a Product Developer at Silverfin? An accountant for a tech company or an accountant who loves technology?

In this case, we're looking for the latter. Silverfin is a fintech company, and we're looking for a tech-savvy accountant. But... not to do our books.

Sounds a little crazy? What else would we need an accountant for? To help us make our groundbreaking platform for Connected Accounting even better. To help us build and insert your financial knowledge into the product. To keep us closely connected to the real day-to-day challenges of accountancy firms. As everything is changing so quickly, we need you to keep your ears to the ground.

Have you been working in accounting for a few years, and are you up for a revolutionary career change? Are you just graduated as an Accountant but you are looking for a different challenge? Take the leap, join Silverfin and make a difference for accountants worldwide.

Your job

- Apply your accountancy knowledge to help improve our product.
- Turn our clients needs and requests into templates by developing liquid code.
- Be the link between our accounting customers and our development team.
- Keep market knowledge up-to-date

Some of our challenges

- Finding the best way to explain to our customers how the digital evolution benefits them
- Our founder Joris Van Der Gucht started his career in accounting, but we need to stay informed about the market at all times
- Communicating about the right elements of our versatile offering with the right audience, as Silverfin is used on different levels within different organisations

Requirements

- You have a background in accountancy by education or experience.
- You are actively interested in development and are willing to learn Liquid code (you will be trained).
- Good communicator, being able to work with different kind of people.
- You are customer-minded.

What we offer

- A competitive salary with extra benefits
- The opportunity to work for an exciting company with a large international customer base

- A stimulating working environment with passionate colleagues
- Endless supply of excellent coffee, fresh fruit and... cocktails on Friday
- Regular and fun team activities

Apply here: <https://www.silverfin.com/en/careers/product-developer>